

1 SHELL GAME

French decorative artist and furniture-maker Thomas Boog transforms ordinary mirrors into stunning one-of-a-kind objets d'art by meticulously ornamenting them with lustrous shells. The wood-backed mirrors range from 16" to 48" in diameter. The 19" version, shown, sells for $7,800 at Maison Gerard; the shop also accepts requests for custom-made styles and sizes. 2 WHAT'S OLD IS NEW Dynamic design duo BassamFellows is launching a signature furniture line for McGuire that references the Wiener Werkstätte. Their Geometric collection recalls turn-of-the-century Vienna, but its material, rattan, is refreshingly unexpected. The armchairs, dining chairs, stools, and ottomans come in a black or natural finish. The armchair, shown, measures 24.5" w. x 26" h. x 20.25" d., has a leather-covered cushion, and costs $1,890. 3 RULING CLASS

Add a sense of old-world elegance to your table with Medici flatware from Vagabond House. Made of easy-care pewter, a five-piece place setting costs $150; Medici dinner plates and bowls are also available. For stores, call 818-341-7616 or visit vagabondhouse.com.

4 PASSAGE TO INDIA

Natori Home's Raj bedding collection brings traditional Indian quilting and embroidery techniques to a sumptuous oblong pillow, $130; quilted sham, $60; and silk runner, $300. A set of queen sheets and pillowcases costs $360. Go to bloomingdales.com.
